

Alexandria Gazette

WEDNESDAY EVENING, NOV. 27, 1878.

PERSIAN LADIES.—The bath is the greatest luxury—we might just as well say necessity of life—of the Persian women. They spend a great part of their leisure time there; indeed, Eastern ladies regard the use of the bath almost in the light of a religious duty. The bath-room in Persia is the temple, the news-room, the drawing-room, the concert-room, the smoking-room all in one.

The women make appointments to meet there, and they tattle and gossip away their sweet hours there, sometimes spending eight hours at a time in the carpeted saloon attached to it—where, in the bath, they tell stories, relate anecdotes, eat sweetmeats, smoke the narghileh (or pipe), and embellish their beautiful forms with all the fancied perfections of the east,—dyeing their hair and eyebrows, and curiously staining their fair bodies with a variety of fantastic devices, not unfrequently with the figures of trees, birds, and beasts, sun, moon and stars.

The day on which the ceremony of the bath rises into a high religious exercise, according to the Persian women, is "the last Friday of the blessed month Ramezan," when, according to their special etiquette, they "ought to dress superbly, and perfume themselves and put on their best ornaments and go to the porticoes of the mosques."

There they "sit down and stretch out their feet, and everyone must light twelve tapers, and in doing this care must be taken to lift the hand high above the head, so as to raise up the veil, as if by accident, and thus display their beautiful faces." All the twelve tapers must be lighted by each maiden, and where one of the tapers is left unlighted, it is regarded as an unlucky omen. "Further, it is not at all necessary that in lighting the tapers, elegance should be observed, (on the contrary lovely women should always let their sweet voices be heard.)" Such is the law of the Persian sages.

Went farther and fared worse is often heard, but too late; could have done much better at Dealham's.

Read this, it will well pay you: We have opened the second lot of cloaks, just purchased, and are free to say that such in quality and price was never, no never, seen, or will be seen again. Ladies call and see what we are doing. We will astonish you. As we have several hundred cloaks cheaper than the cloth can be bought for. Call! Call!
